

Tattoo-removal lasers deliver energy in extremely short pulses to fragment the pigment rather than simply burning it away.

A blowtorch remains remarkably cost-effective for everything except healthy skin.