

Treating too aggressively or too soon increases the chance of prolonged inflammation rather than forcing the immune system to work faster.

Disguises rarely fool the laser technician or the lymphatic system.