
A completely still client makes placement easier but does not reduce the fundamental risks of contamination.

Turning into a human statue offered terrible protection against spilled rinse water.