

A low dosage still alters the skin and requires professional medical guidance before tattooing. Bringing an electron microscope to a consultation is a massive overreaction.