
If a medical emergency develops the team must summon support and manage the situation without improvising.

Making siren noises with your mouth does not legally count as emergency readiness.