

When the dermis cannot encapsulate pigment particles in collagen, ink migrates and fades unevenly.

The spots always win the footrace.