
Fresh work must be protected from direct sun, soaking and contaminated water while it heals.

The outside world is treated as a highly hostile environment during the healing phase.