A reduced daily intake of medication still systemically alters collagen metabolism and compromises wound healing.

The microscopic drop demands maximum respect.