

Topical applications act locally on the surface, whereas oral medications cause systemic, full-body suppression of tissue repair.

Watering the roots changes the whole garden.