

A 2017 review identified altered collagen metabolism as the primary concern for invasive procedures.

We gave the revelation a polite nod