

Acetal lacks implant-grade biocompatibility and is entirely unsuitable for unhealed tissue.
Impatience remains a wildly unsuccessful medical strategy.