
A raw-material certificate does not prove that a finished plated decorative component shares the same safe composition.

The block of metal had an impeccable resume before it was shaped into a shiny skull.