

The product label must prominently display the contact details of a supplier established within the European Union.

Sending a postcard to a distant continent whenever the green pigment separates is no longer considered best practice.