

A product containing certain substances at sensitizing levels requires specific hazard warnings and pictograms regardless of other limits.

Because finding out the client is allergic to the pigment midway through a back piece lacks a certain professional elegance.