
Tissue fluid, friction, and cleaning products constantly interact with the jewelry surface during healing.

Soap operates a very strict border control.