

Titanium allergy exists at an estimated rate well below 1% of the implanted population.

True danger lurks in the fraction.