The colour of anodised titanium is produced by thin-film light interference rather than applied pigment.

The detective is still searching for the paint.