

High-contact friction points on coated body jewellery eventually wear down to expose the substrate beneath.
Hypersonic fidgeting defeats the finish once again.