

Bacteria form colonies on synthetic implant surfaces that resist the immune response.

The microscopic moat was an architectural triumph.