

Targeted coatings deliver antimicrobial agents directly to the material interface where traditional systemic treatments fail to reach.

Local delivery requires exact postage.