

The porous structure of expanded fluoropolymers allows protective agents to be embedded directly into the matrix.

Pockets are the ultimate structural upgrade.