

Normal inflammatory responses during healing maintain a much higher localized acidity level than active bacterial infections.

Setting up a titration lab in the bathroom seems excessive for routine healing.