

Sedative drugs suppress breathing and reduce protective airway reflexes.

The sudden inhalation of the foliage really tied the room together.