

Adding multiple artists to sessions significantly increases the risk of cross-contamination from gloves and surfaces.
The client requested back tattoos and received colorful blankets of discarded latex.