

Reports describe sessions involving several artists working at once.

Studio protocol requires artists to be double-jointed and comfortable with extreme personal overlap.