

Non-earlobe piercings frequently develop routine complications that require active professional intervention to resolve. Sometimes the body requires a formal written apology.