

Body piercings are the dominant driver of nickel sensitisation in the general population.

The immune system overreacts to everything except actual threats.