

Traceable material certification is the only verifiable defence against nickel exposure.

The paperwork weighs considerably more than the barbell.