

Minimizing anatomical reality by describing major placements as mere pinching sets wildly unrealistic expectations.

We clearly have completely different definitions of crabs.