Topical lidocaine creams can reduce surface pain for tattoos by 30 to 50 percent, but they do not eliminate it.

Localised invulnerability is highly susceptible to the element of surprise.