

A cartridge test performed with five changing variables is a shopping anecdote, not a test.

Changing absolutely everything at once is a wonderfully chaotic way to learn absolutely nothing.