

Removing jewellery without professional guidance can trap an infection inside a closing wound. Boarding up the doors while the burglars are still in the house is an interesting security strategy.