

Clients should walk away if direct hygiene questions receive vague or evasive answers.

A graceful retreat remains the most effective health intervention.