

Claiming that a non-compliant tattoo was acquired before joining the force is not a valid defense against promotion denial.

Temporal paradoxes are far easier to navigate than personnel regulations.