

Applying heavy creams or thick oils to an acute piercing injury traps bacteria and significantly increases irritation.
Greasing a problem rarely encourages it to slip away quietly.