

Applying external stretching force to tissue that remains actively inflamed from previous adjustments destroys the fragile healing interface.

Severe impatience is the ultimate enemy of structural integrity.