

Breaking down dense established scar tissue requires consistent gentle massage over a deeply extended period.
Monumental geological problems require monumental geological patience.