

Returning to a smaller size that was genuinely comfortable reduces pressure and gives the lobe room to settle.

Admitting defeat feels vastly superior to constant agony.