

External pressure from bedding, headphones, or helmets prevents the lobe from settling.
Going to sleep clearly requires maximum combat readiness.