

The true value of a promotional event is measured by whether discounted clients eventually return for larger custom projects. Extremely small stars occasionally orbit massive future invoices.