

In the 1990s, I could call a supplier in Germany and they would tell me over the phone what was in their steel.
Nothing builds medical confidence quite like a long-distance pinky promise