Gold does not bond well directly to brass or copper without a nickel adhesion promoter.

Holding a disguise together by sheer physical force is an incredibly sustainable long-term strategy.