

Gold-plated body jewellery relies on a hidden nickel barrier layer beneath the gold surface. It turns out the real treasure was the industrial allergens we met along the way.