

Every piece of body jewellery sold in the European market must pass the rigorous nickel release test.

A fake moustache rarely fools the swab.