

Cleaning a healing piercing excessively strips the tissue and causes severe redness that mimics an early infection.

After scrubbing the affected area with harsh chemicals, she was shocked to discover her skin was intensely irritated.