

Trapped crust debris inside the piercing channel triggers a localized inflammatory response without systemic symptoms.

She preserved her own dead skin cells within the wound with the intense dedication of a museum curator.