

Redness confined to the wound margin is normal irritation, but an expanding ring indicates superficial infection.

The geological survey proved entirely unnecessary.