

A qualified interpreter is legally required if the client cannot read the language of the consent form.
Charades remains completely unacceptable for transmitting medical information.