

Written aftercare instructions must be handed to the client to prove they were told how to care for the wound.
Telepathy is not a recognized method of distributing medical guidelines.