

Ultra short pulses add a photoacoustic shockwave component that fragments particles via pressure rather than heat.

Sometimes you just have to yell at the rocks.